

A Liddle Good News

From the Wycliffe ministry of David and Katherine Liddle, January 2011

Happy New Year! The past several months have been filled with activity at the Liddle household. As you might imagine, nearly all of that busyness was aimed at getting our family out of Dallas and closer to Germany.

Our home was put on the market in June, but it didn't sell. By October, we were willing to adopt a different approach, and we decided to make it available for lease as well. The good news in this area is that, by the time you read this letter, we may have a renter in the house. Praise God for that!

At the end of September, I made a short trip to Germany to help with a conference attended by people who do language work in Europe and Asia. It was a great opportunity to get to know Martijn, my colleague there, and to serve folks who live and work in challenging circumstances. One person told me, "The conference served to inspire me and give me new ideas about how to use technology" The man who organized the event shared that "reflecting on how badly this conference would have been had [you two] not been here" was "unpleasant". It's an odd way to pass a compliment, but technical complications make people very nervous!

After all the hubbub in dealing with the house and selling many belongings was over, we managed to leave Dallas in December and join Katherine's family in Denver for Christmas and the new year. What a relief it was to have all that work behind us!

Now we are in Saint Joseph, Missouri, where we'll stay while we work on raising the financial support we need to continue on to Germany. We have family and a supporting church here, so it's a good, central place to stop. With God's help, it will be a relatively short stop.
